AT SHEEPSHEAD BAY.

Lamplighter Wine the Twin City Handicap and Lady Violet the Autumn Stakes. SHEEPSHEAD BAY, Aug. 30.-The Twin City handicap was this afternoon run and won by Pierre Lorillard's Lamplighter at post odds of 9 to 2, by an open length, from M. F. Dwyer's Banquet, 20 to 1, and Marons Daly's Montana, 5 to 1. It was one of the best races of the year, not in point of time, for it was slow, being run in 1:09 1/5, but in point of quality and quantity. The Suburban winner of 1892, Montana, with Garrison up, ruled a hot favorite at 11 to 5, with Lamplighter second choice, at 9 to and very long odds against the others. The pace was slow for half a mile, with Montana beaten at that point. Lamplighter came away and won easily by a length, Hamilton having ridden him exceedingly clever style. other feature, the Autumn stakes, as was expected, went to the favorite, August Belmont's filly, Lady Violet, at odds of 1 to 2. She was in a very bad pocket up to the last sixteenth post. Sarrison, at the risk of his neck, then pushed her through between Prince George by two lengths, Prince George taking sec-

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 30.-Mr. Newsam. the trainer of King Lee, the fleet two-yearold belonging to the Pastime stables, says he received a bona fide offer of $20,000 for him to-day by letter from a horse fancier in the East. He declined the offer and refuses to give the name of the would-be purchaser. However, it is known that Lorlfarid, P. Dwyer and Marcus Daly have each had an eye on King Lee, and it is supposed the offer came from one of them. King Lee's mile in 1:421/2 last Saturday was the tastest mile ever made by a two-year-old at Latonia.

Cincinnati Vestibule Ran Down Farmer Bennett and Wife at Rensselaer.

Important Changes in the Faculty of Indiana University Made by President Coulter-Hidden Treasure Near Dublin.

INDIANA.

Sad Fate that Awaited Nashly Bennett and His Wife After the Reunion. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

RENSSELAER, Aug. 30 .- Nashly Bennett and wife were killed by the north-bound uestibule train, due here at 2:47 o'clock, from Cincinnati, but one hour late. At the crossing, one-half mile east of the depot, in attempting to cross the track, the horses refused to go. Bennett urged them on, and succeeded in getting them squarely on the track when they were struck by the train, and he and his wife were instantly killed. The cars also killed the horses and demoiished the wagon. They were farmers, living about ten miles northeast of here, and had been in the city doing some trading and attending the rennion of the Ninth Regiment of Indiana Volunteers.

Changes at Indiana University.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. BLOOMINGTON, Aug. 30.—President John M. Coulter has made some valuable additions to the faculty of Indiana University for the coming year. As now constituted, it contains thirty-seven instructors. The changes from last year are as follows: William Lowe Bryan, professor of philosophy, returns after a year's leave of absence at Clark University and in Germany. He is now equipping a laboratory for the study of physiological psychology, for which liberal provision has been made. Edward Howard Griggs, professor of general literature, returns, after a year's leave of absence at Leland Stanford University. to take charge of a new and somewhat nique department in American colleges. John R. Commons, now of Oberlin, succeeds Edward A. Ross, called Cornell, in the department of economics and social science. Professor Commons is engaged with Drs. Ely and Ross in the preparation of text-book on economics. Benjamin W. Snow, the newly-elected professor of physics, has just returned from an absence of two years in Berlin. Before his study in Germany he was instructor in physics at Cornell. His laboratories are to be enlarged and entirely reconstructed.

John Andrew Couch, of St. Paul, succeeds Ernest W. Huttent, called to Chicago, in the school o law. Professor Couch is a graduate of the University of Michigan, and a law graduate of the University of Cincinnati. Since graduating he has practiced in Cincinnati and St. Paul and has written extensively for law journals. In addition to these changes, it has been found necessary to add five to the corps of Searching for Hidden Treasure. . Special to the Indianapolis Journal. DUBLIN, Aug. 10 .- For some years some unknown person or persons have been digging deep holes on the Bell farm, just south of town, evidently in search of some hidden treasure. The work has been kept a profound secret. No one as yet seems to know what is being searched for, but there is supposed to be something buried in the ground that will be worth finding. The digging has been done at intervals of one and two years, and always after night. Holes from six to eight feet deep and three or four feet across have now and then been found soon after they were dug. The place where the search is being made is where the road used to run diagonally across the farm, the place yet being in the woods. The supposition of those who are in want of positive facts is that it may be the Indians have buried a pot of silver somewhere in the section. It is expected that some day something valuable will be unearthed. A few nights ago another hole was dug.

Skipping the Rope and Punching the Bag at Trainer Phil Casey's Place.

An Expert Who Thinks All the Odds Are of corbett's Side Except Strength-The Big Fellow Entirely Too Fat for Fighting.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 .- In a quiet part of Brooklyn, on Degraw street, there is a sporting house kept by Philip Casey, who has trained John L. Sullivan for his battle with Corbett. "Casey's Place," as it is generally designated, has a modest barroom, in the rear of which is a hand-ball and racquet court. There is a convenient shower bath and various other necessaries to athletes in training. Above the barroom and at the front of the house, which is of plain brick and three stories in height, are the living quarters for Casey and a sister, who keeps his house in order. An airy, bright sleeping-room, one flight up and at the head of the stairs is the one assigned to Sullivan during his wait for the start for New Orleans. Caser, his guardian and trainer, sleeps in an adjoining room. Another flight of stairs leads up to where the family table is set in a front room and where Casey's sister carefully prepares the food to be eaten by Sullivan. From the dining-room a glimpse may be had down into the racquet court at the rear of the living quarters. Entrance to these upper apartments may be had without passage through the bar-room. Phil Casey is himself an athlete of note, quiet, firm, calm of speech, determined withal, and thoroughly posted by experience on the conditions which would surround a man who has been brought to thorough physical condition. night, because of his exhibition at the was out, however, at 6 o'clock this morning, and he and Casey tramped about the racquet court until several miles of this sort of exercise lay behind the champion. Then he was showered with cold water, rubbed down, dressed and breakfasted. His food until his fight will be of chops, steaks, chicken and fish.

About 11 o'clock a spanking pair of gray horses pulled a coach up to Casey's door, and Sullivan and Casey dreve away in it. They repaired to the Star Theater, in Jay street, Brooklyn, where Sullivan was left to rehearse his new play, "Captain Harcourt, or the Man from Boston." Two hours he trod the boards, and then Casey, with the coach and grays, called to carry him to his dinner at the Casey house. Abundred or two of idlers were gathered about to see the Boston lad alight, and inside were several personal friends, who shook hands as the champion passed the barroom going up stairs. The big fellow loafed about an hour or more after dinner, and then, in his athletic rig, descended into the racquet court, where his trainers awaited him. To see a full-grown man skip the rope is a novelty, but to see Sullivan, with his beard a day grown, and with his face set into a ferocious expression by the effort of the exercise, while a rope swished under his feet-to see the champion thus was a curious entertainment. Then came the passing of the six-pound leather to and from two attendants, followed by the punching of the bag. There was a motley gathering to witness Sullivan's exercise. Sullivan's train, leaving Thursday even-New Orleans without a pause of any extent, and will arrive in the Crescent City Saturday afternoon.

SULLIVAN'S WEIGHT. Phil Casev this morning talked about Sullivan's weight. "Donbt is expressed by some as to Sullivan being down to 204, as stated," was suggested to Casey. "We don't care to have people think Sullivan is any lighter than he is," was Casey's reply. "I have said his weight is 204, and if anybody thinks he is heavier than that, or that he is too fat to tight-if anybody thinks that, why; there's a good deal of money waiting for any man who will come up and lick our man, thin or fat. That's all I have to say of his weight. As to his general condition, we have nothing to conceal. Dominick McCaffrey came down to training quarters one day, and he wanted to know why we let a hundred or more people see Sullivan daily. Says 1: 'Some folks say Sullivan is obstinate and won't train, and we let people see for themselves just how he is. We let them see him at work, being rubbed, and returning to his work like a man. We let him be seen on purpose, and no man ever trained harder or more faithfully. Of course, when a man is twenty-five to twenty-eight years old he can't help coming into shape, but when a man has reached 271 pounds ithe different." "Sullivan will see none of the set-tos in New Orleans will he!

"No." replied Casey, "Sullivan will attend no fighting there except his own." The Herald this morning publishes, in connection with its account of the exhibiof an expert in regard to the condition of the two men and their chances of winning the great battle of Sept. 8. The expert says: "I have seen the gladiators at work. I watched Corbett closely in the Madisonsquare Garden yesterday afternoon as he tossed the medicine bali, wrestled, played hand-ball, punched the bag and ran for three hours. I saw Bullivan in his bout with Jack Ashton in the Clermont-avenue Rink, Brooklyn, last night. Comparing the work of the two men and its effect on each, there can be but one conclusion. Corbett, as far as condition is concerned, is by tar the betterman. Never before have I seen a more perfect specimen of a trained athlete than when I looked upon Corbett yesterday. One could trace every muscle of the magnificent back, arms and chest. The clear skin showed the perfect condi-

perfect order, and the fact that there was no appreciable acceleration of the norma respiration after a long wrestling bout with an athlete weighing 220 pounds, should prove the Californian's wind is on a pai with his muscular strength. Without having a pound of superfluous fat Corbett is far from being over-trained. He went at his work as a hungry man goes for his din-ner. McVay twice had to tell him to desist in his exercise. There is no surer sign of physical condition than this appetite for work. In shert, Corbett proved that he has endurance to fight for hours, and to fight with effect. His exhibition with the punching-bag showed that his eye is wonderfully quick, and that his hands are wenderfully accurate. "Sullivan's appearance was a complete surprise to me. To be sure, his eye and skin were clear; but as he sat in his corner before beginning the bout with Ashton last night he looked like anything but a man trained for such a battle as is to take place at New Orleans Sept. 7. Sullivan held his head erect; loose folds of fat appeared on the back of his neck. When he leaned forward his close-fitting belt seemed to cut into the waist. He looked as though one could gather handfuls of fat on his sides and stomach. His movements, compared with those of Corbett, seemed slow and listless. A few seconds of quick work sent the perspiration running down the champion in little streaks. When he sat in his corner at the end of the first brief round the respiration was hurried. The respiration seemed to become uneven. There was no room for doubt as to Sullivan's strength. His blows were like a pile-driver. There was no excess of animal spirits that marked every movement of the more youthful giant. I asked Sullivan how much he weighed. He said: 'Two hundred and four pounds, stripped.' If Mr. Sullivan doesn't weigh nearer 230, I am indeed mistaken. To sum up, from a personal point of view: Corbett has on his side youth, agility and endurance. Sullivan's only advantage, so far as I can see, lies in his superior strength." The Gregains-Costello Fight. SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 30 .- A contest which has been almost lost sight of on account of the absorbing interest taken in the approaching pugilistic tournament in New Orleans took place in the Sullivan was later than usual to bed, last | Pacific Athletic Club rooms to-night before a large audience. It was between the Brooklyn rink during the evening. He | middle-weights, Aleck Gregains, of San Francisco, and Martin Cotello, more familiarly known to the sporting world as "the Buffalo," who is also an American, but who for the past five years has been in Australia, where he suffered only one defeat, at the hands of Frank P. Slavin, after a hard battle of nine rounds, He had previously fought Slavin two draws of thirty-one and six rounds, respectively. As a consequence he was a favorite in the betting at Gregain's last battle was with La Blanche, "The Marine," whom he defeated in eighteen rounds. The winner of the fight will in all probability > middle veight championship of America. The purse was $2,200. For fifteen rounds the men fought on even terms. Then Gregains took the lead. As the fight progressed, however, Costello took the punishment, and at the end of the thirty-first round Gregains was almost done for.
